I was born in New York but moved to Ireland when I was 11 years old. I'm currently attending St. Mary's College in Arklow, Co. Wicklow, Ireland. It's a secondary school with six year groups. The year that I'm in (Transition Year) is optional. Transition Year is a more relaxed year with less tests and traditional school work, but there is still a lot of work involved. Our school has around 500 students and is in Arklow. Arklow is a small town located in the South-East of Ireland, about an hour away from Dublin.
